All That Matters; Memoir from the Wellness Community of Greater Boston is an anthology by writers whose lives were changed by cancer. These eight diverse essays, celebrate life's simple pleasures, complicated relationships, periods of despair and moments of grace; and they illuminate the human capacity to draw from hardship, enduring wisdom. Written under the guidance, Peggy Rambach, author of Fighting Gravity an autobiographical novel about her life as the wife of Andre Dubus, Sr., this collection of memoir is a unique resource for healthcare professionals, cancer patients, survivors, and their families. But anyone can gain from reading these poignant, and life-affirming memoirs by authors who know, without a doubt, what really matters. Ms. Rambach, is a resident teaching/artist in healthcare with grant support from the Kenneth B. Schwartz Center as part of the Healing Arts; New Pathways to Health initiative in collaboration with the Massachusetts Cultural Council and the Vermont Arts Exchange. She lives in Andover, Massachusetts.
